AT THE SHEEP HERD, FALL 1932 H. Clay with his sons Kyle, Veigh and Melvin.

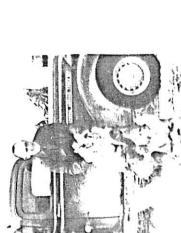

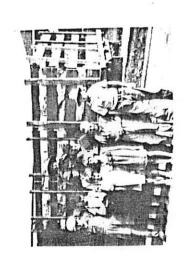

Clay would bring gifts for his children and the Carlile cousins when he returned each fall from taking the lambs to Kansas.

This picture shows happy children with their gifts, October, 1937.

Wanda Carlile, Kyle, NaDene Carlile, Melvin, Clay Carlile, E Jay, and LaVell.

Clay is greeted by two of his sheep dogs as he arrives at the sheep herd. Note the Home on the Range behind the truck.

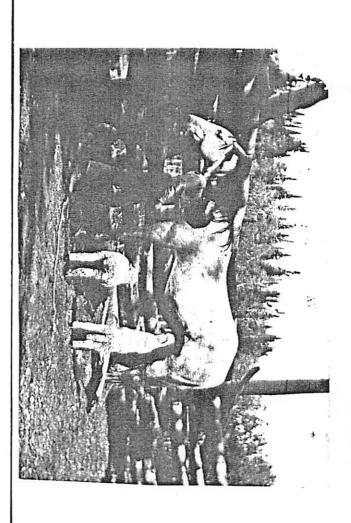

Neighborhood children standing in front of the truck loaded with supplies for the sheep camp are:

Clay Carlile, Melvin, Pauline Smith, Donna Moulton, E Jay, Don Smith, and back row, Dean Moulton, LaVell, and Kyle.

"TEN MINUTES FOR LUNCH"

The camp where the above picture was taken is situated near the Ball Knoll at the head of Strawberry valley. The little gray mare so patiently playing the part of foster mother, is owned by Master Clay Cummings of Heber City and has been the means during her life among sheep and cattle camps on the reservation of saving the lives of a young flock of sheep. The orphan lamb with the rope around its neck is waiting its turn for refreshments.

Often Ruby would ride "out to the herd" with Clay in the truck. They enjoyed stopping at a grocery store for lunch meat, pickles, cheese, and crackers or bread and eating as they traveled along. On the way home they would usually pick up an ice cream treat. These were happy times.

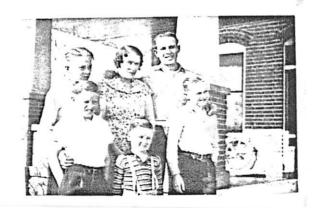

At times Clay's father accompanied him out on the range and other times his brother, E.C., or a neighbor. Some who traveled these trails with Clay through the years were Harold Stevens, Ren Wootton, Nephi Probst, Arnold Johnson, Ralph Johnson.

Like the Master of old, you're a shepherd,
And you lead back the ones that have strayed,
Lead with love, follow up with forgiveness,
Bring us back to the fold unafraid.
